The President's Message

by Fred Tygart

Welcome back to the mountain for the summer season. As you know we have a diverse membership in the WLPOA. Some members are full time residents, while others reside here for the summer and fall each year. Still many other members visit their homes or property for long weekends until they will be able to stay for extended periods. Our WLPOA has programs and facilities to serve everyone regardless of how much time you are able to spend at Wolf Laurel each year. If you visit in the middle of the winter, hoping to do some skiing or just to enjoy the serenity, you will find that our historic Community Center is open to welcome you with a cup of Starbucks coffee, WIFI use, and a winter social program. Yes, the Friday Nighters still meet. Regardless of when you are here, be sure and check your Village Amenities Program's e-mail, which is updated almost weekly by Cindy Tucker, our Amenities Director. Print it and post it on your bulletin board as it lists the dates and hours for all the fitness classes (toning and stretching, tai chi, water fitness), the regular tennis hours (just show up with your racquet and be ready to play) and pickle ball (fun, gaining popularity and now up to four courts). In addition it lists the gourmet and couple's cooking classes as well as crafts and arts classes. Participating in these offerings will provide you an opportunity to meet neighbors and enjoy the wonderful family community at Wolf Laurel that we enjoy year in and year out. I have found that there are many multigenerational families here, giving us a stable family atmosphere not found at other similar developments, overweight with rental units. We should continue to foster this healthy family atmosphere that makes Wolf Laurel special.

Our July 4th and 5th celebrations were again outstanding. My observations expressed earlier as to the special family atmosphere of Wolf Laurel are only reinforced by these displays with the annual WLCC dog and cart parades followed by the Village fireworks, all of which are second to none in their spirit of patriotism – an absolute joy to experience every year! I can never tell who is having the most fun – the spectators or the members with their children and grandchildren who are in the parades! Our thanks go to all who supported these celebrations, especially our staff.

The Board appreciates your continued support and asks that, if you know of any folks on the mountain not yet members, please introduce them to the Amenities Program by having them as guests at an exercise class (Cathy Johnson and Michalene Sanders are doing a great job), a Friday Nighter, or one of the other interesting and challenging activities; they are certain to enjoy it!

Our annual meeting and elections were held on Saturday, July 26, 2014 in the Pavilion. If you could not attend, we hope that you voted electronically or sent in your proxy. Check our website for the results of the election and minutes of the meeting and plan to attend next year. Hope to see you on the mountain.

KIDS CAMP: “Village Wolf Cubs 2014”

This was an amazing camp with up to 35 amazing kids! Activities planned each day included crafts galore, science, games, sports and wildlife education, howling, and they all had a blast tossing water balloons at each other! In addition to the planned activities, the kids were able to choose their favorite things to do a couple of times during the day. They enjoyed stream stomping, swimming, playing on the playground, basketball, art and making new friends. They learned so much about the local environment in the Village during a scavenger hunt and had a great time interacting with our fantastic Kids Camp Instructors and each other. The Instructors also enjoyed the time with the kids - mainly because of all the incredible, vivid personalities, talents and interests these children have.

On Friday, the last day of our camp, the kids really enjoyed making s'mores and wearing their tie died shirts. In the afternoon, lots of folks came out to join the kids and enjoyed our wildlife education program presented by naturalist Carlton Burke, featuring salamanders, snapping turtles - both tiny and humongous, a ground hog, a barred owl, and snakes! Here's this year's wonderful group on the last day of camp and also a few drawings from the kids showing their favorite activities.

Watch Your Altitude!

by Jim Landry

Yes, we do live in the mountains here in Wolf Laurel. But more than that, we experience these mountains and learn that they can have an effect on our health, cooking, acclimation and attitude.

Ozone: It can be good for us on the edge of space where ozone filters harmful ultraviolet radiation from sunlight. But down here on the ground, that extra atom attached to the oxygen molecule is not a friend. It has a tendency to mess up our lungs and makes breathing a bit more difficult. If this becomes an issue with you, be sure to visit the NCAir Quality site (<https://xapps.ncdenr.org/aq/ForecastCenter>) on a daily basis before going outside. Not that you should hide away, but do try to limit outside physical activity during days of high ozone levels.

Cooking: High altitude cooking (usually above 3500 ft) does require attention when baking. With a lower air pressure it takes longer to bake, liquids evaporate faster and gases expand more. Adjustments need to be made, and fortunately many recipes and premixed goods now alert us to these needs. Visit our website's Paper Clips page for a detailed article by Dot Barnett titled "High Country Cooking Tips".

Acclimation: For those of us living on the mountain full time, we need to be aware that our temporary house guests may not feel quite up to par. This might become evident while on a stroll to the top of Big Bald. Keep an eye on their breathing and hue and stop for rest and water more often if you invite them on a high-elevation hike.

Attitude: Now this topic could be a two-sided coin for some. You've probably heard the saying "If you're lucky enough to be in the mountains ... you're lucky enough". With the scenery, solitude, wildlife and seasonal changes; no need to convince us on the positives! The flip side might be the snow and cold for some, but being prepared with a supply of dry wood, a 4WD vehicle and a hot chocolate or cappuccino will take the edge off that.

Altitude: And finally, there is no doubt that while living at Wolf Laurel, you have been asked at one time or another "Just how high are you?" Or maybe you have even asked yourself the same question. Altitudes are listed below for some familiar areas around Wolf Laurel. There is an accuracy of plus or minus 1%, so expect to be within 30 to 50 feet from the elevations listed. Visit the Apple App Store for free apps that will show the altitude for your current location.

Wolf Laurel Gate - 3700 ft, Ski area base lodge - 4000 ft,
Hampton Gap mail station - 4250 ft, Country Club - 4500 ft,
Top of ski lift - 4700 ft, Top of Big Bald - 5516 ft (exact)

WANDERING LADIES AND THEIR ADVENTURES

by Debbie Wallace
WLWL coordinator

The Wolf Laurel Wandering Ladies 2014 season was kicked off this year by a visit and tour of the Penland School of Crafts near Spruce Pine and lunch at the Garden Deli on June 18. The sixty minute ride up winding roads was well worth the trip to see the students in their elements of creativity. We were able to watch them at work in most of the classrooms, which included encaustic art, clay, glass, iron, metals, print & letterpress, and wood. The serenity of their surroundings allow for a peaceful and creative atmosphere and a relaxed style of instruction. We were all quite amazed at some of the finished products that we were able to see as well as the opportunity to purchase from the artists at the Gallery. Tours are open to the public, but I would recommend that you check to be sure the students are in session at the time of your planned visit. We followed our tour with lunch at the Garden Deli in Burnsville and shopping around the square for those interested.

The second event of the season on July 2nd included a visit to the Carl Sandburg home, The Flat Rock Playhouse, and lunch at "Café on the Verandah" in A Day in the Country Store. Upon our arrival at the Sandburg home we were surprised by a visit from the apprentices of the Playhouse, who put on a six person skit on the life of Carl Sandburg.

We found this to be quite educational and entertaining. A tour of the house, given to the state with all of its original furnishings and personal belongings, made it quite interesting to see the life that Sandburg and his family led. Unfortunately time did not allow us to tour the prize-winning goats or barn on this trip, but that would be a great reason to return. The cost to tour the home and grounds are very reasonable.

We proceeded to Hendersonville for lunch at "Café on the Verandah," where a buffet was prepared for us. The food here was wonderful and the staff very friendly. We had a little time to shop in the country store attached to the café.

We then returned to the Flat Rock Play House where we were all thoroughly surprised and entertained by the large cast of actors and outstanding set of "My Fair Lady." This was definitely a production to see and was enjoyed by all. I recommend that if possible, you get seats in the first six rows for any of their productions in order to completely enjoy the experience.

So far the wandering ladies seem to be enjoying the places we have visited and the fellowship with one another. Our next event is planned for August, but it is still in the planning stages. Watch the weekly WLPOA updates for more information.

Wilson and Terry Auction Company is a family owned and operated business located in Weaverville, North Carolina. We operate our business based on the guiding principles of honesty, integrity and accountability.

We conduct approximately twenty organized, fast paced and entertaining auctions a year, specializing in estates and fine antiques. Sales are conducted at our auction gallery, located at 1098 New Stock Rd. in Weaverville, NC. In addition, we conduct on site estate auctions when appropriate. We also provide potential sellers with a unique evaluation process that is intended to insure their items are sold at the proper venue. It is our goal to provide both the buyer and the seller with a setting that will allow them to purchase/ sell antiques and estate items at a fair market value. With this goal in mind, we utilize aggressive and unique advertising strategies including a large mailing list, national media outlets, local print advertising and distribution outlets throughout the Southeast. Due to our aggressive advertising strategy we have developed clients throughout the nation with a strong emphasis on the eastern seaboard.

ON THE ROAD AGAIN: news from RMS

This is Harder than We thought!

by Chuck Freeman, WLRM&SHOA Board of Directors

Recently, the Wolf Laurel Roads Maintenance and Security Homeowners Association Board of Directors tried to take a first step to emphasize the privileges of our homeowners who are in good standing. Without a lot of discussion, the board was in unanimous agreement that the “easy access” bar code decals should be at the top of the list for perks that came with payment of annual fees for roads maintenance and security. In an action aimed at denying this perk to folks who had not paid their annual “dues,” we directed the staff to deactivate certain bar code decals, which would force the vehicles to pass the scrutiny of our security staff by going through the left lane at the gatehouse. We have decided that we acted too quickly – it’s more complicated than we first thought.

Largely because of questions raised by Wolf Laurel residents (generally of the “Why do I lose my decal when XXX gets to keep his or hers?” variety), we have discovered that the issue of the bar code decals is far more complicated than we imagined. For instance, we discovered that well over 100 vehicles have bar code decals, but are not owned by Wolf Laurel property owners. These vehicles belong to emergency responders, to Country Club employees and members who do not live on the mountain, to a myriad of companies and people who provide services to the resort.

Intertwined with this issue of bar code decals, we also discovered questions regarding who should or should not receive colored Wolf Laurel decals that allow less scrutiny by the security staff for people who are entering via the left lane at the gatehouse. Many, of several types, have been issued to residents and non-residents and provide the basis for our roving patrols to quickly judge who is authorized to be in non-ski slope areas of the resort. What was perplexing to the Board was how to set criteria for issuing Wolf Laurel decals versus issuing bar code decals.

All of this has caused the Board, at our meeting on the 9th of July, to suspend any action on bar code and Wolf Laurel decals for the rest of this calendar year. Between now and the New Year, the Board will formulate a policy that maintains the security of our gated community while providing as much convenience to authorized users as we can. We recognize that this will require a delicate balancing act: if we restrict the issue of decals or bar codes too much, we risk delays in service for our members. If we open up the issue of bar code decals to a maximum extent, we run the risk of negating visitor control and the risk of providing homeowners who are “current” with little incentive to pay to maintain our private roads and provide security for the resort. We also realize that even this is not a simple issue: while the bar code entry provides a digital record of entry (that can be said to improve security), it is also true that the trained eyes of our security personnel are very proactive measures to deter threats to the security of the community.

Thus, we recognize that there are a lot of moving parts and vested interests here. The Club wants to make it as easy as possible to be members. The other organizations on the mountain, such as Blue Mountain, the Ridges and Deer Run, have their own concerns. The property owners in the Preserve also have rights that we must honor following our purchase of Bald Mountain Development.

In the coming months, the members of the board will be talking with as many residents as we can to discern where the balance should lie on any policy we put in place. We welcome everyone’s comments, in person, in writing, via the Association’s web site, www.wolflaurelroadsandsecurity.com, using the Contact page, or emailing to Sandy Gwozdo, our Director of Security, at sandy@wolflaurelrms.com. We want to get this right, and we want your help.

Welcome to the Wolf Laurel Library

by Gene Woolf

When it is far too rainy to golf. When a black bear has chased you off your deck. When nothing came in the mail but bills. When the dog seems bored. When the significant other is off doing their own thing. Nothing for it, dear friend, but to grab a glass, a good old chair, and a BOOK.

And your Wolf Laurel library is here to help.

Open to all, free, well-stocked and cosy.

As you enter our beautiful community center, the “Barn,” with its warm and inviting central seating area, and Starbucks coffee if desired, look for the small room to your right. The main library area is located there, with both hard cover and soft cover fiction, arranged alphabetically by author. The library is in an ongoing project of upgrading our fiction, replacing the tired, old and dog-eared with the larger size and easier to read paperbacks, and a good selection of hard covers.

Many new and popular writers, especially in mystery and good writing are being added, such as Louise Penny, Alan Furst, Sue Monk Kidd, Cara Black, and Donna Leon. A Goal: “Good Quality for every good taste.”

Also in this room are American history, a good selection of Military history, and regional material on North Carolina and the Appalachians.

Leaving this room, look across the Barn and you will see our second general area, where travel and books on cooking and gardening are located.

Downstairs we have a good selection of animal books, biography, children’s books, westerns, young adult, science fiction, and a nice group of puzzles and games. All you golfers interested in reading about the sport can check out that section downstairs; after all, a golf book is lighter than a golf club and won’t force you to prevaricate about your score.

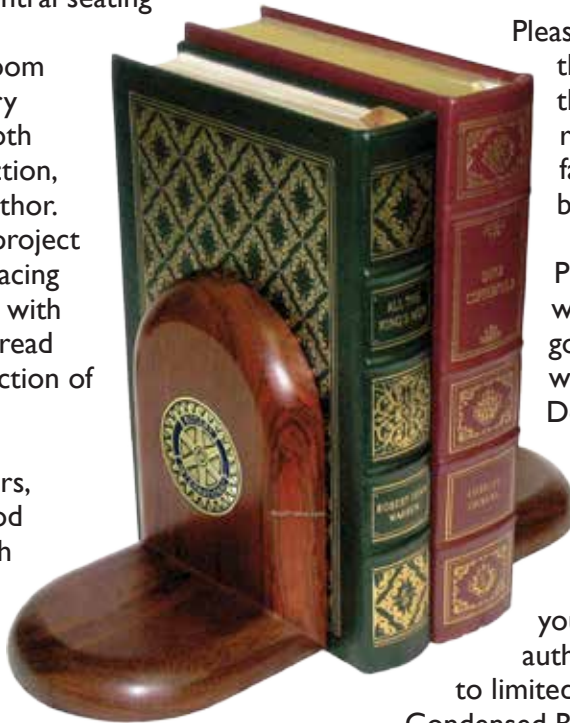

We welcome all WLPOA members. We have no card system; our entire system is Honor based. Our rules are only four: Courtesy, Common sense, Feedback, and Enjoyment.

Please do not take out a pile of books, and leave them on your coffee table when you leave for the winter. The bears might eat them. Please return books in a reasonable time, when your family is through with them. Let’s keep the book ball rolling.

Please let us know what your interests are, what you like and dislike; we always appreciate good advice. Rave about something and we will look for it. That’s how we discovered Donna Leon and many others.

Finally, we certainly welcome good donations. There is a box for them inside the door in the main section. Please be selective, we are a small space library. If you note that we have a ton of books by one author in duplicate, we can’t use more. Due to limited space we cannot accept Reader’s Digest Condensed Books, Encyclopedias, last year’s tax guides, etc. When donating, we have a stamp that can indicate “donated by-----your name,” if you wish. The overall donation motto: “Selective donating, not house cleaning.”

We love our library! YOUR LIBRARY. Come and have fun, all the year round.

The solution for all things printed.

THEY CAME – THEY SAW! The 4th on the 5th celebration

by Earlene Shofi, Amenities Chair

There are lots of places to watch fireworks, but where can you go to view -- up so close and really personal -- such a brilliant pyrotechnics display that cinders land on your clothes and hair, and you go home smelling like a firecracker! This extraordinary exhibition was provided by the Marshall Volunteer Fire Department and exploded in the WLPOA Village. And of course, all spectators loved every minute of it!

Is there a better way to celebrate our country's Independence Day celebration than here in our small WL community, surrounded by its natural beauty, with clear night skies as a backdrop, sweatshirt cool air, and good friends to share the festivities with? Then add great music: the band "Simple Folk" played in the Pavilion for all to enjoy and enjoy we did! There was lots of dancing as most found it too difficult to sit down after the band struck their first note. The children were treated to inflatables to climb on as well as tattoos (which some grownups enjoyed, too!), popcorn, and other ageless wonderful junk food!

The Ebbs Chapel Volunteer Fire Department graciously answered questions and allowed the children to climb all over and explore the fire truck that they parked just inside the Village. It moved to the fireworks area for official duty before the fireworks began.

A hearty "thank you" to our sponsors who contributed so generously to the Independence Day festivities! We couldn't do this without you.

THE VIEW FROM MY DECK: Celebrating our patriotic holidays in Wolf Laurel

by Gwynne Beneke

The celebration of both Memorial Day and Independence Day in our community are events that we look forward to each year. The mountain seems filled with more families, more laughter; more good food and fun. It is easy to forget that these holidays not only celebrate our country's freedom and democratic way of life, but also commemorate the sacrifices of many, who over the past two and more centuries gave up their lives and limbs to "put their money where their mouth is." We have all benefited from these past heroes. Our gratitude should be continuous. Often it is not.

I was proud and humbled to be a part of a first-time commemoration on the mountain this past Memorial Day. A solemn ceremony took place at the raising of our beautiful American flag outside the country club. Many attended and retired military residents were encouraged to wear their uniforms. A retired Air Force general spoke movingly of his experience and his memories of colleagues lost. A moving invocation was offered. I was privileged to sing the National Anthem as the flag was raised: the lyrics took on new and deeper meaning as I sang, watching an untattered flag being raised against a clear and open sky. The renewed appreciation of the freedoms that we share has stayed with me.

On our travels across the country we frequently stay in the FamCamps on military bases; we are awakened at 7AM with reveille; the workday is closed at 4PM with retreat and the National Anthem, and at 10PM the day ends with taps. We have joked that we weren't always ready to begin our day at 7AM! But the reminder that we are a free country, that we are protected by a ready military force that continues to be engaged actively in our interest is never far from our minds. That reminder is not so readily available to all.

I requested a copy of the invocation, written and delivered by retired colonel and West Point graduate Rich Ashley at that first, and hopefully what will become an annual Memorial Day commemoration here in Wolf Laurel. It is a fitting and enduring tribute.

Gracious, Sovereign God, Creator of all things and Lord of all nations, in whom we put our faith and trust, we are grateful for these who gather together here and across our great land on this special day to remember those who have made the ultimate sacrifice for the freedoms we enjoy.

Be with the families and loved ones of those who have given their utmost. Comfort and encourage them, and may they be reassured that the sacrifice of their loved ones contributes to a worthy cause. May they be proud of those they have lost, entrusting their ultimate fate into Your gracious hands.

Please hold our current servicemen and women in Your strong arms. Cover them with Your sheltering grace and Your presence as they stand in the gap for our protection. May the members of our armed forces be supplied with courage to face each day, and may they trust in Your mighty power to accomplish each task. Let our military brothers and sisters feel our love and support.

We also remember the families of our troops serving today. We ask for Your unique blessings to fill their homes, and we pray Your peace, provision, and strength will fill their lives.

*Now bless this gathering that it may preserve and strengthen the honor, respect and appreciation we hold for our country's defenders. In Your Holy Name we pray.
Amen*

This says it all. GOD BLESS AMERICA!

COVENANT CORNER

by Detour Dave

As you read this, the Covenants Committee has been working hard to bring up to date the language contained in the current document. Many of the changes have to do with the references to "the Corporation" which no longer exists. They are also working with R+S in an attempt to avoid duplication contained in their respective guidelines. We will keep you posted on the progress in future issues of TOB.

I'd like to "Detour" for a moment in order to comment on the current restaurant scene. In Mars Hill, we have witnessed the closing of Cork and Crown (it may reopen later), the Main St. Deli, and El Dorado. On the plus side, Papa Nicks has expanded into a sit down establishment with a very affordable menu. I am eagerly awaiting the opening of Moe's BBQ in the vacated Jack of Hearts location in Weaverville. This Biltmore area gem offers up great ribs, pulled pork, wonderful sides, and some of the best cornbread that has ever been served up.

A recent Thursday night visit to Zuma in Marshall was a special treat. Bobby Hicks is the fiddling headliner and was accompanied by no fewer than 12 area musicians. They range in age from 8-85. Come early or you will not get a seat. Zuma also has a BBQ and Bluegrass night on Tuesdays as well as an open mike night on Wednesdays.

In case you missed the July 5th extravaganza in the Village, a great time was had by the 500+ attendees. Most people have insisted that the fireworks were the best ever. We need to tip our hats to the great work being done by the entire Amenities team. New records have been set for fitness classes, as well as Pickleball participation. Sell outs for Kids Camps, cooking classes, and Wandering Ladies have been the norm. Take a moment to thank a staff member for their efforts.

Your Amenities committee is also looking to spice up our current Monday and Friday nighters. It appears that a Brat(wurst) night is forthcoming, as well as a ever popular oyster roast. Did I mention that the DUCKS have been practicing for some upcoming duck races? Look for all this and more in your emails and on our community bulletin board. Quack, Quack

PLAY BALL!

Pickleball courts are ready for you! Are you ready for pickleball?

We've finished painting lines for 4 pickleball courts on the lower tennis court. We have paddles and balls to be checked out at the community center. The staff will help you learn to put up the pickleball nets, so if you are an amenities member, you can play any day.

We play pickleball every Sunday at 3 PM; we had 14 players on Sunday, July 6th and had room for more. We will have several "learn how to play pickleball clinics" to be announced by email in the near future.

Join us for this new sport – it's popularity is growing like Topsy!

EDITOR'S NOTE: Recently all 4 courts were in play with more players waiting for their turns on the sideline!

RESTAURANT RAMBLINGS

by Gwynne Beneke

Although there are still a number of interesting restaurants to review in the area, I was curious about the cooking classes, sponsored by the WLPOA amenities program, begun last season. Held in the kitchens of WL homes, these classes (limited to 10/12 participants) have been booked to the max since their inception. The July class, led by popular chef Michaelene Sanders, was held at the Angelica Ridge home of Nat and Barbara Pieper, which perches on the topmost ridge in our community. The vaulted great room accommodates an expansive kitchen, comfortable dining space, as well as the fireplace centered seating area.

I arrived early to find Michaelene and Barb busily arranging the already prepped ingredients for the 3 dish + dessert brunch/lunch menu:

Roasted Vegetable Strata; Shaved Asparagus Salad with Shallots and Fried Eggs; Pinto Bean Salad with Avocado, Tomatoes, Red Onion, and Cilantro; and Cherry Kahloutis with Crème Fraiche. Michaelene is both knowledgeable and conscientious about how nutrition is the basis of good health; all her classes stress the fact that "You are what you eat!" Fresh ingredients -- lots of green and protein-filled vegetables and fruit prepared imaginatively, is her mantra; she stresses this in the commentary that accompanies the final prep and presentation during the class. "Cook with color – the brighter the better!"

Michaelene will distribute the printed recipes with instructions to class participants. There is a feeling of ease as careful organization will allow her to enjoy the class; after guests arrive, all dishes will be brought from the ovens or combined and prepared for presentation in their (previously designated) platters and bowls.

Savory aromas – fresh mint, chopped shallot, roasting veggies – filled the room as the 12 guests arrived, ready to learn something new, follow the chef's instructions if asked to help, ask questions, finally fill their plates from the colorful counter. They will later toast the hostess, chef and each other as they seat themselves at the 2 tables, beautifully set and decorated in this lovely mountain-top home.

As final preparations are made (with several guests pitching in!) Michaelene stresses some of the basic principles of entertaining: prepare as much as possible ahead of time so, as the hostess/chef, you can enjoy your own party; remember that organization is the key to stress-free entertaining (tip: put “stickies” in serving dishes to remind you of their final contents); use fresh and seasonal dishes when you plan your menu; try to cook once, serve at least twice!

After sampling all the dishes (except the Kafloutis which was still bubbling in the oven), I left the happy group. Abundant laughter and companionship added the final ingredients to a culinary experience extraordinaire.

What did I take away from the class? 1) a printed handout of new recipes with some unusual combinations of flavors that had not occurred to me; 2) a memory of 12 enthusiastic and lovely women having a lovely laughter-filled lunch in a warm and lovely home; 3) validation of my own upbringing with a mom who stressed “1 yellow and 2 leafy green” for each day’s menu; 4) and most importantly, an appreciation for our fellow residents, who (like Michaelene) generously share their gifts, knowledge, expertise, and countless hours, planning, leading, and participating in our remarkable WLPOA Amenities Program. This community based and staffed program, offers an almost infinite variety of opportunities for living a richer, healthier, informed life during the season here on our mountain.

One final note: we are looking forward to sharing Sunday Supper at Rhubarb, a relatively new restaurant on Pack Square in downtown Asheville. Sunday Supper is a new feature -- a common table, prix fixe, meal with a changing menu served family style, at 6:30 each Sunday night. Reservations required. More about that in the next issue. BON APPETIT!
